

Abstract

The invention relates to printed strip-type materials, especially for covering containers, possible imprints being applied to the side opposing the filler and/or to the side facing the filler by means of digital printing.